

Cooper Seykens

Born and raised in the Netherlands, Cooper Seykens began his photographic journey at just 17, traveling across the United States with his father. At 19, he pursued formal studies at the Royal Academy of Arts in The Hague, refining his artistic vision. During these travels, he captured powerful black-and-white street portraits that quickly gained recognition.

Cooper Seykens's photography is a testament to his ability to capture raw emotion and authenticity. His signature style attracted attention, leading people to request similar portraits of well-known personalities in the Netherlands. Today, his work evolves, combining technical skill with a personal storytelling approach in photography.

Cooper Seykens' work showcases his ability to capture raw emotion and authenticity. Armed with his analog Hasselblad, he photographs portraits of artists, musicians, and athletes, revealing bold and vibrant personalities, particularly in his latest series shot in Mexico. By capturing intimate moments, the artist offers them new perspectives and emotional depth. Whether through black-and-white portraits or more contemporary compositions, his work is distinguished by a natural ability to put his subjects at ease, creating an atmosphere where confidence and vulnerability coexist. Through this approach, Seykens creates powerful images that reveal the unique personalities and stories of his subjects.
