

William Kinget

After graduating from LCC in Graphic Communication in 2010, William Kingett went on to study for his MA and PHD in Social Linguistics specialising in the Communications of the United Nations.

Being process driven, passionate about typography and illustrated iconic popular culture William finally found his creative footing in printmaking. As a viewer, participant and collector of his own memories William selectively uses these constructs as referencing distillations to create new informed patterns of discourse.

William also likes pizza and would eventually like to become an astronaut and work for NASA.
